TARPEIAN ROCK.

School-boys are familiar with the story of Tarpeia, the maiden of the Capitol, who sold one of the gates of Rome to the Sabines for the decorations they wore on their arms, and was punished for her perfidy being overwhelmed by their bucklers.

Now as there is no class of History in our university, the Prov. Government has hit on a practical method of illustrating Roman story A cart full of military knapsacks &c. is drawn up facing that side of the Government house, in calle Bolivar. The cutter throws the paper towards the door, and the poor fellow on guard has to look out for his head lest he be converted into a Tarpeian Rock, for the sport of the modern school round the corner.

In like manner Mr. Von Arnim exemplifies the person of Fabius Cunctator, as his movements to prolong the Western railway are decidedly of a "slow-coach" character.

Gen. Flores has turned Cincinnatus, having renounced the "bubble" reputation of the cannon's mouth, to occupy himself in growing maize and minding sheep in the "campo," of his late adoption.

Col. Gaimo plays Julius Cesar, pretending to decline the post of Governor, while ardently desiring it

Gen. Mitre aspires to the fame of an Augustus, for the peace attending and attending his Government, and his patronage of literature, whether in large subscriptions to papers or subsidies to military tacticians, guidebooks &c.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

"The Indians! The Indians!" is again the cry. Government; it is said, has received information from the South, which has led to the immediate departure of General Pinnero and Col. Vedia. The National administration is nearly perplexed with this question, as it seems more practicable to annihilate the mosquitoes in Carpachay Archipelago, than rid us of the devastating inroads of the Indians. We regret to be obliged to censure the conduct of the Government, but since the murder of Atahualpa, by Pizarro, to this very hour, the Indigenous proprietors of this continent never been mathematically exact order has been published for the extension of the frontier line, soldiers cannons and ammunition are sent out; is this the way to conciliate the Red man? where is the agent of an enlightened Government with his pressure, his seeds, his clothing. Such, alas! a regret to say, is unknown in this country. We take from the Indians their hunting grounds, without giving them an equivalent; are they to be blam'd if they resent it, and invade to rob us. We plunder them, they plunder us. Extend your frontier line, General Mitre, with your soldiers and your gunboats and with the increase of territory, you will augment your wars, your invasions, and your expenses.

In the name of common honesty, we demand that the Nat. Government adopt some less Filibustering method for enlarging the Province We demand that if we go down against the opposed, that a few missionaries be despatched to the Indios, and that some effort be made to civilize and christianize them, which we are unable to overcome, whose territory we seek in Waikerino.

The Bank, we are glad to see, has at last adopted a liberal policy and in the fullest possible manner, acceded to a requisition of the merchants, respecting foreign coins. Several of our leading merchants, we understand, have pledged themselves to assist the Bank, should it find itself in a critical position.

What is our legislature doing; a frequent question about town, For it says that the principal business in the the Chamber is in the adjourning line.

The Provincial Government, we are glad to observe, is supporting Public education. In almost every little town in the camp there is to be found a neat and homely, state school. This is as it ought to be, The Government has appropriated $ 100,000 for the building of a school in the 25 de Mayo.

A sleepy sentry got nicely poked into the street, the other night, by an indignant military acquaintance, who found the watchman's pike lying on the side-walk in the gutter. He could only address the policeman in English, or French, neither of which idioms the sentry understood. a slight misunderstanding was consequently took place, the sentries retreating before the presented weapon, which our belligerent countryman, in the very best of good humour, kept pointing at the sentry being merely to tickle the "Lawyer's mouth" man with the point of the spear. This being effected, and the sentry being restored to the officer of peace, with a big-a doucem, our friend departed, chuming "We won't go home till morning."

The opera season for the new Company appears in Colon. The Marinetti Raved Troupe is probably one of the most celebrated in the world. Our Gaiety loving fellow citizens and young folks in particular, will be delighted to hear this newsphat what will be their surprise, when we inform them that owing to a lucky coincidence, the Less company landed here the other day, both companies are now joined and ready, so that with one ticket we can witness both companies perform.

A new Hotel, we see in the Tribune has been recently opened in calle Main No 135, which we believe was formerly the residence of a scientific following gentleman whose absence at St. Patrick banquet was greatly felt.

If our colleagues keep barging on the 30th of November much longer, people will begin to attach more importance to this date than it really merits, a friend of ours is about composing a peppa sauce for the occasion.

Today, at 11 a.m., comes off the great art sale auction as Messrs Drabble's, 20 calle Cinenbero. The private exhibition yesterday was crowded and the collection of English engravings will afford our friends an opportunity of making a pleasurable pecuniary investment.

ARRIVAL OF BARON MAUA.

We salute the Baron Mauá, who arrived here yesterday morning, per steamer Hendy, from Montevideo. A man so intimately connected with the commerce of Buenos Ayres merits a cordial salutation from a journal, which, as we have occasion frequently to remark, is peculiarly devoted to commerce and industry.

As one of our leading financiers and bankers, as the steady friend of the National Government, and the Rothschild of the River Plate, we welcome the baron, on behalf of the whole foreign commerce of the Argentine Republic

HOW TO ELECT M.P.S.

A few political aspirants next together and form themselves into a club, with a high sounding programme which is published in the papers, and is hotly commented by the papers who are in the secret.

The club thus formed receive a large addition of votes and influence from the sons, cousins, nephews, clerks and protegees of the great stars who preside, and with great magnanimity declares "the Club has no list of candidates of its own, it will support those of the people freely elected at the Parochial Meeting," that is of the people could not elect for itself without the valuable assistance of the Club" which is a very slight fraction of the people.

But it now occurs to us that there was a certain Club Libertad with the same programme of which the Club Buenos Ayres has declared himself a real or successor we don't know which.

Then the Parochial Clubs meet; they are supposed to be the expression of the majority of the parishioners and none more than these are surprised to see in the daily papers "on the night of the —inst the voters of the parish of —— met in a numerous assembly, probably six or eight individuals," and elected the following candidates.

Mr, So and So &c.

The leaders of the performance egerly manage to forget the usual citation in the papers, namely how many the meeting is to take place except themselves and hence they always appear unique. This strategy seems to them the return of their own freedom and relations and after being successfully and simultaneously effected in a few cases, the hit is complete and the people have ready made candidates suited to order and supplied in abundance, and the humiliating "the people" are pompously given forth in all the glory of print to an admiring public.

The day of the elections approaches, and the Club applies to Clubs of districts" of sections and of groups, generally and for their supplies of energy and pusillanimic attainments, as great leaders who are quite willing to earn a broken neck or a black eye to show off a little of their prowess, and to pitch them after, but perhaps it is the best part of talent and they also secure the services of inferior poems of athletic prowess, the Club school. This is a certain "champion" of the name of Gomez was worth 500 votes to the party and consequently his services are bought out with his back any obnoxious voter knock down half a dozen of the opposition, treat on the cause of peaceful meeting and unanimously by a vote of 1 to know as much about the fundamental principles of the Constitution as M.P. as of the Grand Turk.

The consequence of his success does not study any point connected to the community, throws obstacles in the way of any useful reform proposed by Government and for the entire, if not obvious and he cannot refuse his valuable assistance from going to the Legislature, and the consequence is that the country retires the emblematic silver indicative of the President "no hay numero" inform the public that the day is past without any work from the honourable, sluggish "fathers of the country"

Well may we exclaim "long live liberty" and Republican institutions! in a country where zeal for public welfare is down to zero and where there is more theatrical animation behind the scenes than on the stage.

AB EX M. P

ABBOTT'S READING.

To the Editor—Sir, we naked you a question last week, respecting the cases of the grocer's and the butcher's daily. We are sorry to perceive that you could not give any definite answer We beg to state that your esteemed letters have not anything to do with the Trinity Board, and that Englishmen alone are not required to navigate England's Seas, but were be a Britain, if he possessed a Board of Trade certificate. he would be eligible to command a ship and in the event of his not being in circumstances to command one, he can, if even possessed of a certificate, act as first or second mate, and there are many instances of the kind in Scotland, where men who have not command, but certificates, are employed as mates and seconds. We think that our English brethren in Buenos Ayres merits a cordial salutation from a journal, which, as we have occasion frequently to remark, is peculiarly devoted to commerce and industry.

As one of our leading financiers and bankers, as the steady friend of the National Government, and the Rothschild of the River Plate, we welcome the baron, on behalf of the whole foreign commerce of the Argentine Republic so appoints a man who is a thorough canaan, and English by birth. His nomination is approved of by the British Consul. We apprehend that they are the best judges of the competency of the man in question. If his certificate was not unimpeachable cannot it, (and, as alleged—but which we cannot omit, the parties most interested must be aware of the risk run,) it is not for nothing happening to the vessel. The insurance would be best. We, however, differ with our friends the captains' boarding masters in this respect. It is a necessity for referring to "Abbott on no danger in using the apparatus, and Shipping."

It is a standard work, it has been already very extensively used by the general of every colony, adopted by the marines and land might also be read to advantage by cadets of Paul.—English Paper

THE DOLOROTAS

To the Editor—In your impression of Saturday you quote from the Tribune, headed "Colonel Munatores," which, I allowed to go without correction, might be calculated to injure the servant Dolarotas, and those in charge of her. A very short extract of the facts of the case, as they have been related to me by the captain and mate in charge, will suffice to put the matter right.

At the time they had been pumping the vessel was very much down by the head, the pumps were choked with coal, the cargo shifted, a piece of the barnacle fell down and which had been a quantity of coal in it by placing three large in the bottom, and the steamer was then towed into the inner harbour, as it was thought that the vessel was in a very small cabin entered with the water when pumping in and which was found underneath the fore cabin floor, in the hold. It was then considered that the vessel was under control, when she was immediately stopped pumping, and the water was allowed to rise, thus causing the fore and hereby all the water out of the bunkers naturally a little more to assist, but not to any extent, as the vessel was then perfectly upright, and the water rose equally all round the vessel, whereas if there was any material difference in the quantity of water on one side than the other, the vessel would have listed to that side, which she did not do. Such are the facts of the case, as they have been related to me by the captain and mate in charge of the vessel, and now from various persons. The first thing he did was to rush to the bunker cabin, and on finding the water there, he ran up and in a most unmanly abuse the chief officer, shaming every one and threatening either to shoot or kill the Engineer about which I know less than your devil.

It is not the first time that the above named Col. has interfered with the duties of the same steamer, interference on his part having occurred when she was under my command, however since the late accession, these interferences by Col. Dolarotas" have my orders that if Col. Munatore interferes with their duties, they are simply to go to their cabins and wait until he learns how to behave himself.

The assertion that he is a gentleman, we leave to the public to decide.

I am gentlemen yours &c.

Henry Brown.

IMPROVEMENTS IN GAS LIGHTING.

A short time since we announced a small invention in connection with the manufacture of gas by Boulton and Watt, which promised to effect considerable saving. The invention was more completely in the experimental stage, but we have since had the pleasure of seeing it in operation at the Post-office Gas Company's Works, and we have no hesitation in saying that the result is more than realised. These very extraordinary results were obtained by the application of the phenomenon and principles of the well known Bude light, which has been applied to that of ordinary gas, may be produced with a decided advantage in point of economy, and an increase of light equal TERRIBLE ACC.—A member of the 22nd Regt. now in this city, has a portion of a cartridge taken from a Confederate prisoner, consisting of three cones, passing one within the other, something as one thimble would be placed in another. In a cruice around these was found a white powder, connect id by means of a thread, acting as a "slow match" to the powder of the cartridge. This was so arranged as to explode in a certain time after leaving the muzzle from which it might be fired, thus making the ball consist of three projectiles instead of one. If an explosion should take place while the bullet was in the body of a person struck by it, it would make a terrible wound. The weapon used by the prisoner from whom these cartridges were taken was an ordinary musket with a large bore. —Boston Traveller.
